The Real Reason For This Collection's Title - The Dragonfly's KISS

Granted, the Dragonfly symbolizes power, prosperity, adaptability, transformation, harmony, and self-realization. But the real reason the Dragonfly appears here is deeply personal. So personal that I considered not mentioning it at all.

Sharing private information can open one up to ridicule and mockery. When that information leans towards the spiritual or supernatural - the floodgates open. However, throwing caution to the wind here goes...

A few years ago I lost a younger sister to cancer. We were close in age so many of our life experiences were shared together. Family gatherings, birthdays, weddings, schooling, parties... and the list goes on. If you have a deeply loved sibling, you will know the kind of relationship I am talking about.

My sister's passing came as a deep blow and affected me in ways that I am still experiencing. Her battle with cancer came on suddenly and lasted less than a month. After the shock wore off, real grief set in and it was tough going for the whole family.

It was only after my sister's death that I learned the real significance of the Dragonfly. She had been fascinated by them for years. She even collected jewelry related to the resilient insect. Apparently, the Dragonfly meant more to her than any of us realized.

They would appear at important events in her life which she believed was a good luck omen. For instance, at her daughter's wedding, two dragonflies tried to photobomb the picture taking.

At my sister's funeral, one of her work colleagues was wearing a Dragonfly necklace. This colleague was as surprised as we were to learn of our sister's fascination with Dragonflies.

Now I know what you're thinking, these are just mere coincidences. And we are associating a spiritual connection/significance which is simply not there. Maybe so, but there is one more experience I would like to share with you. It is the real reason for the title of this collection.

Several weeks after my sister's passing, during one of my daily runs, a Dragonfly collided with me. Collision is the correct word. All of a sudden, the Dragonfly was in my face and it startled the bejesus out of me.

For a momentary second, it fluttered before me and then departed. But not before brushing my cheek as it sped away. It felt almost like a kiss.

Nothing like that had ever happened to me before or since.

Again, just mere coincidence you say, but I would like to think it is something more. Besides, life is all about messages, ones we understand and ones we don't. More importantly, life is about messages received and messages not received.

We must keep an open mind and accept those messages - whether they come from inspirational quotes, loved ones or omens that appear out of the blue.

Keep your eyes open and ears peeled, the Dragonfly is on the wing.
